Carpathia's Story of Saving All Who Lived When Liner Went Down Seems Disproved.

The Oceanic of the White Star line came to port early today, bringing still another chapter of the Titanic horror. Monday last, in midocean, she found a Titanic collapsible lifeboat-as the folding contrivances of cork and canvas and wood which were carried for the supposed safety of the passengers were called. In it were three dead bodies, come of which was probably that of Thompson Beattie of Chicago.
